

U.S. NEWS AND POLITICS

RECONSIDERING DEMOCRACY—A hyena would laugh if it could only see what is happening in Washington today. Frankly, it is quite disturbing to see Democrats and Republicans bickering back and forth like two spoiled children fighting over a lollipop while the rest of their family members are being attacked by street thugs. And imagine this—these are the highly educated and highly intelligent individuals we elected to office, individuals with MDs, PhDs, JDs, and MBAs.

If there ever was a time that political ideology became political idiocy, that time is now. Shouldn't we be outraged when our elected leaders appear on TV in their suits and ties, grin with a sense of righteousness, and debate unyieldingly on whether or not to raise or lower taxes while countless Americans are jobless, ousted from their homes, and watch their children cry as they walk the streets without food and shelter? This isn't about socialism or equal distribution of wealth. It isn't about entitlement. It's about being responsible and humane.

It's time our leaders put their nonsensical political ideology aside and put common sense back in Washington. Inflexible ideologies are consuming forces that have eaten up nations ... like hungry vultures pecking at the flesh of dead victims.

RICHARD QUAN

Managing Editor